STEIN COLLECTION EXHIBITS PROACTIVE PRACTICES AGAINST CORONAVIRUS

PARK CITY, Utah (March 5, 2020) – The health, safety and well-being of Stein Collection’s local, national, and international guests and personnel are of the utmost importance at all of the award-winning properties: Stein Eriksen Lodge, Stein Eriksen Residences, The Chateaux at Deer Valley, and The Residences at The Chateaux. In light of the heightened awareness of coronavirus (COVID-19) cases, Stein Collection remains vigilant in its efforts to ensure the well-being of every visitor and staff member.

As the issue evolves, Stein Collection continues to monitor statements and adhere to guidelines provided by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), World Health Organization (WHO), and the local health departments. Stein Collection properties are taking extra precautions for staff traveling domestically and internationally. Proper hygiene is highly encouraged for all staff, including frequent hand washing, hand sanitizer products and stations set up for easy employee access and use, covering of faces when coughing or sneezing, and staying home if staff members are not feeling well. In the event of a coronavirus occurrence in Utah, an emergency preparedness plan will be enacted immediately.

All existing reservations are still valid. All room rates may vary and are subject to availability. Rates are per room, per night, and do not include tax, resort fee, gratuity, or service charges, which vary by season and room type. The normal deposit, resort fee, and cancellation policies still apply.

For more information about Stein Collection, any reservation policies, or their steadfast precautions against coronavirus, please contact Jessica Turner at (435) 604-2793 or jturner@steinlodge.com.
